“Quality of Light”

Slide show and lecture illustrating the beauty of natural light. From dawn to dusk, and every lighting situation in between, Carol explains and dramatically illustrates her theories on the use of natural light. Learn how to use the sun alone to create drama in your photos.

“Zen and the art of Nature Photography”

Every day is the perfect day to take pictures, no matter what equipment you have or what time of day it is. Seeing nature in the moment and finding beauty everywhere is what this mind set is all about. Learn how to feel your connection with nature to get better pictures. You will walk away from this lecture with a new appreciation of the world you are a part of.

Close-up Photography

Life is in the details. Learn to see the beauty in the smallest of details. Close-up photography will provide you with a new perspective and dazzling photographs. This class is for intermediate photographers wanting take their photography to the next level. You must have a camera with either a close-up lens, close-up rings or a 200 or 300mm lens with a macro setting. A tripod is helpful and is recommended for this class.

“Photographing Birds”

Challenging, rewarding, frustrating – all describe the art of photographing birds. Carol will teach you where to find them and how to capture them on film. This is an invaluable primer for anyone interested in the art of photographing birds in their natural settings.

“On Gossamer Wings”

Learn the secrets to photographing butterflies, bugs and other winged creatures. Carol shares her knowledge about the natural world to make this intriguing subject less of a mystery.

“How to get your nature photos published”

Now that you’ve taken some absolutely breath-taking photographs, what do you do with them? Let Carol guide you through the complex process of getting your photos published. Through her work as the photo editor at Chicago Wilderness Magazine, Carol will share her knowledge of what magazine editors look for in nature photography and the best way of presenting your work.

“Marketing your photography on the Internet”

Learn the basics about creating a beautiful, simple and elegant web site. Carol will teach you tips and tricks for getting your photos into the computer and having them look their best. Walk away with an understanding of how to get started on the world wide web.
